

MORE AFFORDABLE COLLEGE DEGREES.

GRADUATE SOONER. START EARNING FASTER.

The cost of a college degree goes beyond tuition. Every additional year means more tuition, fees, housing, and living expenses - and more time before students can begin their careers.

Governor Abbott's plan will give Texas students the option to earn certain bachelor's degrees in three years instead of four. Texas public universities will be required to offer accelerated 90-credit-hour degree programs in high-demand, high-paying fields.

Graduating a year sooner could save students $15,000 to $35,000 in tuition and living expenses and allow them to start earning a living sooner.
